Doggie Daycare Information

Benefits of Doggie Daycare include:

- Daycare is a great way to socialize your dog, especially if you have a puppy or shy dog. Puppies are very impressionable and the more they are socialized the more likely they will grow up to be well-adjusted dogs. If you have a shy dog, daycare can be a great tool to help your dog build his or her confidence and adjust to other dogs and people. Just remember it can take time for a shy dog to get used to daycare and really enjoy themselves.
- Daycare is an excellent way to exercise your dog, although we do not recommend having your dog participate in daycare every day. Daycare is very exhausting and your dog needs some time off to catch up on sleep. Additionally, doing daycare every day can lead to guarding behavior in some dogs, which is not something we want to see in our daycare environment.
- Even dogs that are more mellow and do not enjoy non-stop play benefit from the mental stimulation they get from daycare. There is always lots to watch and new smells to check out in daycare.
- Daycare can help with dogs who suffer from separation anxiety. It gives your dog a place to go during the day when you cannot be with them and provides both mental and physical stimulation which will make them tired and more receptive to the training you do at home to overcome anxiety.

Inherent risks of Daycare include:

- Daycare is really no different than sending a child to school. Every child catches a cold or the flu at some point, and some children have better immune systems than others. The biggest difference between your dog and a child is that your dog cannot tell you a day or two before they are showing signs of being sick that their throat feels scratchy and often it is the days before they act or look sick that they are the most contagious. When we do know of something going around we will attempt to notify all parents of dogs that may have been exposed. We also ask for help from the parents, as you are more likely to notice the subtle changes in your dog that indicate they might be feeling a little off, and if you notice these signs we ask that you refrain from bringing your dog to daycare. However, even with us being very diligent in trying to prevent the spread of a virus or bacteria that makes our dogs sick it still cannot be completely prevented.
- Daycare is similar to contact sports for humans, except these participants are playing the game with their teeth and claws. The more active a player your dog is the more likely they will get scratches and other marks on them. There is a playgroup supervisor in group with the dogs at all times and we monitor each group to keep play levels as safe as possible, but sometimes things do happen. If we notice anything, we will point it out to you, but remember they are covered in hair and we will not see everything. If you find a mark you feel may be concerning, please let us know.
- The closer a dog is in contact with other dogs the more likely they are to come into contact with fleas, ticks, or other external parasites--this is why we require all daycare participants to be current on flea and tick prevention. But even being current on prevention, dogs can pick up stragglers that have not yet fallen off or been killed by the medication. If you find fleas or ticks on your dog, let us know and we can decide whether or not to recommend using a different or additional prevention.
- After a day of daycare, your dog will most likely go home hungry, thirsty, and tired. This is normal. During play, dogs might not take the time to stop and drink as much as they should. We always have fresh water available but many dogs are too distracted with playing. Do not be surprised if your dog goes home, eats, and passes out. This too is normal and is probably one of the primary reasons you bring your dog to daycare. Because dogs in daycare often do not take the time to take a break, we do nap rotations in the morning and afternoon. The naps give the dogs a break from play and each other, but they are still going to need extra sleep at home.

Doggie Days Daycare: What You Need To Know

(Please initial each paragraph to indicate you've read and understood it.)

_____ All dogs must pass a daycare evaluation with a Clawington staff member. If he/she passes this evaluation, they will then enter a probationary period of at least 3 sessions. During this period, your dog will be monitored one-on-one with other dogs from their playgroup to assess them in a social setting. If they pass this probationary period, they will then become a full-fledged member of their playgroup.

_____ If your dog does not pass either their evaluation or probationary period, our staff will recommend trainers to help better socialize him/her. Once your dog successfully completes that training, we can reevaluate their socialization skills.

_____ A daycare attendant will be present in group play at all times. This attendant will be the referee and monitor of the group, making sure that everyone plays nice. If any dog exhibits aggression or nonsocial behavior, including but not limited to fighting, bullying, or intimidation, he/she will be put into a timeout, where they will be kenneled in an area alone for at least 15 minutes to see if they will calm down. If this nonsocial behavior becomes consistent, the dog will be suspended from daycare until it is resolved, either through a trainer or through time from the social setting. A reevaluation appointment at owner's expense will be required before the dog will be allowed back into a daycare group.

_____ All of our daycare participants must be in good health. If your dog has any health issues, you are required to disclose this information at their evaluation.

_____ Please do not bring in your dog's own toys or bedding because they are much more likely to exhibit possessive behavior with that present. Our facility will provide all bedding and toys needed for your dog's daycare session.

_____ During busy boarding times, our facility may become so full that we do not have room to house daycare participants. Daycare may be limited to appointment only or closed completely during these times, which included but are not limited to: Easter, Spring Break, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Fall Break, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Day. If you are unsure if daycare will be open on any given day, please call or text us to find out.

_____ Your dog may be wet or damp when you pick them up during the warmer months because they may get the opportunity to play in our puppy pool. Because of this, our staff may use an ear flush with a drying agent in their ears to clean them and dry out any wetness in order to prevent ear infections. If you do not want us to use this ear flush or would rather your dog not participate in water play, please let our staff know.
